AS WE GROW OLD

The Kidneys Need Constant Help—Barre People Depend on Doan's Kidney Pills.

The constant strain of busy life wears out the kidneys, and in later years the kidneys cry for help. Old backs will ache, day in, day out. Urinary ills will add their weight of woe.

Until the kidneys have the help they need. Add the kidneys with Doan's Kidney Pills.

Restore a perfect filtering of the blood. Cure the kidneys when they're sick. Barre people endorse this great remedy.

William Stephens, stone cutter, of 75 Maple avenue, Barre, Vt., says: "I know that Doan's Kidney Pills are an excellent remedy for those who suffer from backache or kidney trouble. My mother used them off and on for a number of years. She is over eighty years old, and, of course, does not expect to be cured, but she is more than glad to know of a medicine which brings such prompt relief as Doan's Kidney Pills. She always keeps them in the house, and never fails to recommend them to her friends when an opportunity presents itself."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

STRAFFORD

The annual meeting of the Strafford Co-operative Telephone Company was held in Barrett Hall, South Strafford, on Tuesday of last week, and was attended by a large representation of the 317 stockholders. The meeting was called to order by the president of the directors, John Judd. Dr. L. L. Nowlan was elected chairman of the meeting, and S. B. Buell secretary, both of South Strafford. The meeting was a spirited one, and the discussion interesting, occasioned by a one thousand dollar indebtedness, the most of which was incurred the past year in entering Woodstock and adjoining towns with its lines. W. A. Perkins of Barnard, one of the directors, and the one who had this work more directly in hand, made an extended and interesting report, explaining the difficulties encountered, because of the determined opposition of the New England Telephone Co., and the demands of the Woodstock authorities. Effort has been made for the past three years to get into Woodstock, but without success until the past year. The assets in poles and lines placed, material on hand, subscribers already obtained, and many others promised, gave such a good showing that the demands of the Woodstock authorities, expressed in his re-election as director for the ensuing year. The directors elected are as follows, in the order named: H. C. Gilkey, South Strafford; A. L. Morse, West Strafford; A. J. Ludd, South Strafford; W. A. Perkins, Barnard; B. F. Quimby, Dr. L. L. Nowlan, and S. B. Buell, South Strafford; F. Fitzgerald, Norwich; George Brown, Sharon. Of these H. C. Gilkey and W. A. Perkins were re-elected from the board of last year. The new board met later and organized as follows:

Remarkable Rescue.

That truth is stranger than fiction, has once more been demonstrated in the little town of Fedora, Tenn., the residence of C. V. Pepper. He writes: "I was in bed, entirely disabled with hemorrhages of the lungs and throat. Doctors failed to help me, and all hope had fled when I began taking Dr. King's New Discovery. Then instant relief came. The coughing ceased; the bleeding diminished rapidly, and in three weeks I was able to go to work." ## SOME QUEER COINCIDENCES

The Hindoo Idol That Mrs. Carnot Ordered Destroyed—A Grim Exhibit in a London Museum—A Ring That Brought Owner to Suicide.

Of course the psychologists have explanations for them all, but there are lots of things that happen that somehow do not respond readily to these so called explanations of "purely mental effect" or "accidental coincidences" and all that sort of thing. When Mrs. Carnot, widow of Sadl Carnot, died and her will was read, a clause in it caused considerable comment. This was to the effect that a certain small Hindoo idol carved from a hard stone which would be found among her property must be taken out and crushed until completely destroyed. Many marveled at this apparently singular request, for the idol seemed a harmless, ugly little thing, but her instructions were carried out to the letter.

The idol had been presented to Sadl Carnot years before he had ever thought of the presidency of France by a friend who had brought it from India. Later he learned that there was a legend attached to it which asserted that whosoever would retain it in his possession would rise to the fullest height of power in his chosen profession, but die of a stab wound when at the zenith of his career. Carnot traced the history of the idol and found that for 500 years the rulers who had possessed it had all died either in battle or by assassination of stab wounds. Yet he laughed at the story, called the facts adduced by his search a mere chain of coincidences and retained the idol. He died by a dagger in the hands of an assassin; hence Mrs. Carnot's strange request.

In Chicago a pawnbroker has a queer looking old turnip of a watch that he will not sell and will not wear, for he knows its history. He bought it at a sale of accumulated police property, and after the sale as a warning one of the police officials related three "coincidences" in connection with it. The first Chicago man to own the watch, so far as the police knew, had been killed by a burglar, and the watch was one of the few things the thief got away with. A few weeks later the burglar, with a party of his pals, pursued by the police for another crime, took refuge in a house on the outskirts of the city and sought to hold the officers at bay. All were taken alive except the burglar, and he was shot dead. The watch was found on his body. It was around the detective bureau for a long time, and one day one of the force asked permission to take it home to show some friends, his description of its quaint, curious case having aroused their curiosity. On his way back to report that night, with the watch in his possession, he was shot dead by a crook who had a long standing grudge against him.

The pawnbroker put the watch in his showcase, but purely as an ornament, and made such investigation regarding its history as he could. He learned that it had been made in France more than a hundred years ago, and five men who had worn it had died violent deaths. Yet these were all coincidences, and the curse of the old woman from whose hands it had been snatched by a thief in Bordeaux shortly after it left its maker's hands had nothing to do with the case whatever.

In the South Kensington museum, London, there is an object catalogued 22,450. It is a cast of a woman's face and was found in an excavation not far from Luxor, in Egypt. The cast is that of a beautiful woman, but the face wears an expression of sinister evil. The man who found the cast died within twenty-four hours after he had touched it, and the two workers who handled it died within a few weeks. Three of the carriers who handled it on the Nile boat died within a short space of time, and the man who reshipped it at Cairo also died within less than a week after he had played his part in the work of getting it to its destination. All these were seemingly natural deaths, but it is odd that all the men whose fingers touched the cast in Egypt should have died so soon after the handling.

Then there is the ring of which Girouard, the French detective, has told us and which now is in one of the museums of Paris. It is odd in that it is flexible, slightly so, for it is formed like a twisted serpent in closely woven gold links with an opal on the top of the head, two tiny emeralds for eyes and a ruby in its mouth. Seven such rings are not apt to be in existence in any one city, yet seven times during the twenty-plus years Girouard served the Parisian police in a position which brought him to the morgue daily he found this ring on the bodies of suicides. Four times it had been claimed by relatives of the dead, and twice had it been sold. The seventh time Girouard saw to it that it went through the usual red tape channels to a place where it could no longer be worn.—New York Press.

ALAS, NO PIE FOR BREAKFAST.

Doom of The Pie is Sounded By Dr. Wiley.

Washington, June 15.—Dr. Wiley, the laboratory sleuth who dug into the dangerous secrets of boxed meats and had the pure food law enacted to safeguard the gastronomic works of his fellow citizens, has now laid the cold hand of science upon the humble pie, which will soon know its fate.

Daily now, in the Washington laboratory, pie is undergoing processes of dissection. Its ingredients are being subjected to microscopic scrutiny. Soon the horrible details will be laid before a trusting public, and all New England may go hungry at breakfast. It is Dr. Wiley's solemn injunction to Americans that the pie of their youth has degenerated.
